Roger:

I believe that you have captured the overall thinking correctly, however, I would also state that Jordan Cove is not in the business of owning and operating wastewater treatment and associated facilities. In our acquisition of the former Weyerhaeuser paper mill we also acquired ownership of an industrial wastewater pipeline and use of and maintenance responsibility for the existing ocean outfall. Should there be an economically viable alternative to our current wastewater disposal approach offered by any credible party we would certainly consider. To be clear, if the City or any other credible party offered wastewater treatment services that would be more economic than what Jordan Cove is presently paying to self-perform this work, we would seriously consider.

Regards,

Bob

Bruce,

I wanted to thank you for taking the time to talk with me the other day regarding Mr. Beetham's Wastewater project proposal to the city of Coos Bay and his assertion that Jordan Cove was assisting with the project financially (allowing discharge through the old ocean outfall and paying to refurbish that outfall to allow 12MGD and/or building a new ocean outfall through BLM owned property). This email serves to confirm our conversation and the fact that Jordan Cove has not and does not plan to (1) use the new wastewater plant, if built, to treat industrial wastewater from Jordan Cove's proposed facility; (2) Jordan Cove has not made any commitments to upgrade the current ocean outfall or to build a new ocean outfalls for Mr. Beetham's proposed project.

Please let me know if I have misstated or misunderstood any of the above facts.

Respectfully,

Rodger Craddock, City Manager
