NEWMARK TOWNHALL MEETING – Thanks to everyone who attended the town hall meeting for improvements to Newmark Avenue held on Monday, the 25th at SWOCC. The city's consultants, TriLand Design Group, Inc. and Stein Engineering, were pleased with the crowd and the extent of input they received. The study area extends along Newmark Avenue from Staples to the "Y". There should be another meeting in late January to see what alternatives the consultants have come up with for improvements to Newmark.

The proposed standards will be reviewed at a public hearing on October 10, 2000 at 7 p.m. at City Hall.

SUN BUILDING MUSEUM WORK – It was discovered last week after one of the windows fell out of the Sun Building, that the windows have rot around the sills. There are 15 windows that are involved with the same rot problem. Community Services is currently looking for funding to replace the windows estimated at $10,000 to $15,000 for labor and materials. If the City cannot find funding, the windows will need to be boarded up to protect the public and the museum pieces in the building. Additional rot has also shown up in various places around the building in the siding. The siding should be replaced next year with either treated fir or cedar and milled the same way, so that it looks the same. The Sun Building has been registered with the State Historic and Preservation Office and they must approve any work to be done on the building.

INMATES BACK TO WORK – The Shutters Creek crew were back on Ocean Boulevard doing litter pick up on Tuesday. The inmates filled 35 30-gallon bags full of litter. The application is for funds to overlay South 4th Street from Anderson Avenue to Elrod Avenue and Elrod Avenue from Highway 101 to South 4th Street. The project also includes additional signing along Anderson Avenue with directional signs over the highway. The project is estimated at approximately $203,000, the City's match for the project is 10%. Steve Doty prepared and submitted the application to the State for the project. Region 3 received 11 applications with seven projects approved for funding. The City during the preliminary design work on the project will be looking at making south bound traffic on 4th Street a free left hand turn onto Elrod.

CITY RECOGNIZES YEARS OF SERVICE – Telecommunicator Rhonda Wilson celebrates her 15th year as a North Coos County 9-1-1 Operator and Coos Bay Police Dispatcher. She is an expert at her job. In addition to working as a Telecommunicator, she is a Department trainer and was one of the first dispatchers to participate in and complete the Field Training Program curriculum for police trainers. Throughout the years she has trained many of the Department's dispatchers. Her verbal skills and multi-tasking aptitude are not her only strengths. She is an excellent editor and composer of the written word. This is reflective of her early journalism education which is acquired prior to coming to work for the Coos Bay Police Department. Many years ago she compiled the first Project Report for Safety Town. It is still in use as a program implementation guide for other agencies throughout the State. She enjoys photography in her spare time. She has put even that hobby to use for the Department and is currently putting together a photo history of our K-9 Program. One of her photos was published in the July issue of Prime Time. We are fortunate to have someone of Rhonda's talent dedicating her career to the safety of our citizens. We can't wait for her to write the book she claims she will title, "Just When I Thought I'd Heard Everything... the Phone Rang." Thanks, Rhonda, for the years of service. We hope our City is the benefactor for many years to come... with you!
