Staff from the City of Coos Bay completed clean up late Friday afternoon, February 15th, of a wastewater spill which overflowed out of a manhole in the 1300 block of Ingersoll Street. The spill was reported at 4:46 pm. Staff responded immediately and was able to removed debris which caused the blockage and the overflow within 25 minutes of receiving the report. After clearing the line staff disinfected and hosed down the surrounding area. It is estimated that about 10 gallons of wastewater was released.
